Please join us for an online ACWA Community of Practice to share examples of practice for collaborating across agencies, departments and communities to support children and families in education. Practitioners have told us that they are particularly interested in talking about children who are experiencing vulnerability, including children in out-of-home care and children with disability. This may include children who are missing school, experiencing suspensions or parents who are less involved in the school community.

The practices shared by speakers will highlight ways we can work together across government agencies and NGOs. Use Sli.do [<https://app.sli.do/event/uqgtvols>] to share your practice examples with the larger group and to post or vote on your preferred questions (there will be time for 3 questions in the Q&A with speakers).

The second half of the session will involve small group discussion in break out rooms to share ideas around the discussion question: What are examples of good practice as well as practice challenges for agencies collaborating together to support children and families to engage with education?

From this event, we hope to capture what people are doing, and will share examples of practice and resources via a 'Padlet' after the event (<https://sydney.padlet.org/amyconleywright/ACWA2COP>).

Who should attend? People working in the child and family sector and with children who are at risk of, or who are in contact with, the child welfare system, including out-of-home care (OOHC)
