Short Online Learning Sessions for Leaders Navigating the 'New Normal'

Presented by International Leadership and Team Development Specialist and Executive Coach, Caryn Walsh

Without doubt, the COVID-19 crisis has presented tough times for us all. Uncertainty now seems to be the order of the day. But while a changing world has its difficulties, it can also offer enormous opportunity if we choose to see it.

The Centre for Community Welfare Training, in conjunction with Pure Magic International Business Solutions, is pleased to present this exciting new series of 1.5 hour online learning sessions that will empower leaders to steer their teams through the COVID-19 crisis and beyond.

Leaders will emerge from these sessions with a range of strategies and techniques for building workplace resilience and endurance, and the confidence to tackle the 'new normal'.

“My leadership team and I thought this was so inspiring. The information was relevant to us in our roles and moving through COVID, and gave us a great grounding, with practical tools, to move our troops through this pandemic. Highly recommended.”

Sonia Liddicoat
CEO, William Campbell Foundation

“We have gone through all five online leadership sessions and our leaders have responded very positively to all of them. The feedback has been consistently very complimentary and given that some of the sessions had hundreds of our leaders listening to the session, we highly recommend them.”

Di Andreolas
Manager Learning & Development
City of Sydney Council

“The online sessions we recently did were fantastic for our leaders. Practical, relevant and easy to apply.”

Esala Masitabua
Deputy Governor
Reserve Bank of Fiji

Session descriptions

Session 1

Keep your cool! Never miss a beat as an exemplary leader coming out of a crisis

During this period of upheaval, it has never been more critical for leaders to approach their roles with agility, while remaining positive, calm and resolute in their decision-making and daily practice.

This session will explore essential skills and strategies for effectively steering your troops in a solid and determined way. You will also learn about the different personality styles of leaders, to help determine if there is one that leads better than others, and reflect on what you can do better and differently in your leadership roles moving forward.

Session 2

Virtual reality: How to build and manage successful virtual teams

This session will shed light for leaders on the optimal way of building and successfully guiding their remote teams.

The critical aspects that are needed to lead a remote team will be discussed, together with the characteristics of ‘best remote employees’. The challenges of managing a remote team will also be considered, as well as the firm rules and ‘must-haves’ that leaders need to implement to make your remote or home-based teams thrive.

Session 3

From crisis to growth: Leading your troops forward in challenging times

During this period of upheaval, it has never been more critical for leaders to approach their roles with agility, while remaining positive, calm and resolute in their decision-making and daily practice.

This session will explore essential skills and strategies for effectively steering your troops in a solid and determined way. You will also learn about the different personality styles of leaders, to help determine if there is one that leads better than others, and reflect on what you can do better and differently in your leadership roles moving forward.

Session 4

10 essential communication skills that world class leaders possess. Do you?

While many leaders are technical experts, they can sometimes lack the effective communication skills they need to create a ‘dream team’ that purrs along like a robust machine.

In this insightful session, you will learn about the 10 essential skills and techniques leaders at all levels need to master in order to inspire, motivate and help their troops become energised and highly performing in everything they do.
